No major changes expected in enrollment

by MATT WALKER

Enrollment for the Spring Term should remain the same if current figures maintain their present levels, according to Doug Mason, head of the Admissions Department.

"It will be difficult to tell exactly what enrollment will be until the first week of January when all students are actually registered and attending classes," Mason said.

There are 1,131 students attending Wartburg this term, 1,108 full-time and 23 part-time students.

These figures are comparable with the 1981-82 totals of 1,080 students, 1,064 full-time and 16 part-time students.

"Of the students in school for the Fall Term, 96 percent have registered for classes for Spring Term," said Harold Sundet, registrar.

Only three class sections have been closed because of a lack of students for next term, while several sections have been added to accommodate extra students.

The 4 percent who have not registered for next term consists of transfer students, students who withdraw from school and students who will graduate in December.

There are approximately 42 students who have not registered and 20 to 25 of those are candidates for December graduation.

As of Dec. 3, nine students have officially withdrawn from school, the lowest total since Dr. Kent Hawley, dean of students, has been at Wartburg.

"I attribute the low number to the fact that the social and sports programs at Wartburg have generated a great deal of excitement for the student body and nobody wants to miss out on the fun," Hawley said. "Also, there have been no controversies on campus this year to alienate anyone."

The Admissions Department currently lists 25 new students who have been accepted at Wartburg for the Spring Term.

Total enrollment of ALC colleges down

The American Lutheran Church's (ALC) Board for College and University Services met in November and heard that total enrollment in ALC colleges is down this year, with only Wartburg and Waldorf showing enrollment increases.

Reports indicated that the total enrollment of full-time students at the 12 ALC colleges in the 1982 school year is 19,278, compared with 19,886 at the beginning of the 1981 term, a decline of 3 percent.

The only two colleges showing increased enrollment were Wartburg, (up 3.5 percent) and Waldorf College, Forest City, (up 6.1 percent).

One college president at the meeting admitted to a morale problem of gloominess and soberness on the campus because of smaller enrollments, but he also described the situation as "a beautiful opportunity to find the treasures of the church."

"We don't even know the strength that is out there," he said. "We haven't been tested for a long time. In the past we got our boosts from new building programs on our campuses. We aren't going to have many of those for the next few years."

"Getting our kicks out of new buildings is like being enamored of tinsel," one board member ventured. "Maybe the present situation will force us to discover the diamonds we have."

The "education industry" was described as being an "especially depressed industry, because the present national administration simply is not emphasizing human services."

Freshmen enrollments in ALC colleges are down 6.3 percent, from 5,982 full-time first year students in 1981 to 5,604 freshmen in 1982, a figure that is in line with freshmen enrollments in other colleges in the Midwest.

Activities planned for Human Rights Day

Special activities, including a chapel service and a vigil, are planned for Friday, Dec. 10, to observe Human Rights Day. The events are sponsored by a new campus organization, Wartburg Amnesty International. The group is associated with the Amnesty International U.S.A. Campus Network.

Senior John Mohan will speak in chapel Friday morning at 10 in Buhr Lounge. A copy of Amnesty International Report 1982 will be presented to President Robert Vogel at that time.

Mohan said Amnesty International isn't affiliated with any one religion, but Christianity has addressed the problem.

"Christianity hasn't monopolized work for human rights," Mohan said, "but I keep thinking of Luke 4 where Christ says he has come to release the prisoners and give liberty to the oppressed."

In addition to the chapel service, members of the campus group will conduct a vigil outside the Student Union. The members will hand out literature concerning Amnesty International from 7:30 to 9 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mohan said.

Amnesty International was formed in 1961 by a London lawyer, Peter Benenson. Benenson was prompted to form the organization after reading about two Portuguese students sentenced to seven years in prison for toasting freedom in a public cafe.

Wartburg's chapter of Amnesty International has become a chapter in an international network of 151 countries. According to the Preface of the Amnesty International bylaws, 250,000 people are active in the human rights organization.

The group is dedicated to three concerns. First, the release of prisoners held for their non-violent actions to promote their beliefs. Second, Amnesty International works for the release of political prisoners who have been denied fair trials. Finally, the group is concerned for all prisoners who are tortured or sentenced to death.

Mohan said the campus chapter will be involved with several international campaigns including Urgent Actions and Disappearances. The Urgent Action campaign is a month-by-month action where letter writing campaigns are organized in support of prisoners.

This month the action is aimed at three women and one man who were imprisoned in the Republic of Korea (South Korea) for demonstrating against the government. The four individuals were imprisoned for their criticism of the government's handling of a labor dispute.

The Disappearances action is a campaign to raise public concern over countries that have political opposition disappearing without traces. Amnesty International Report 1982 stresses that "Governments must not be allowed to evade responsibility when they choose to obliterate suspected opponents."

Mohan said the campus group will also conduct educational raising events throughout the next term.

Chapel schedule this week:

Tuesday, Dec. 7—the Rev. Louis Wunderlich, St. John Lutheran, Waverly (Neumann Auditorium, 10 a.m.)
 Thursday, Dec. 9—Chaplain Larry Trachte, Advent Hymn Sing (Balcony of Neumann Auditorium, 10 a.m.)
 Friday, Dec. 10—John Mohan, senior, "Human Rights Service" (Buhr Lounge, 10 a.m.)
 Sunday, Dec. 12—Christmas Candlelight Service (Neumann Auditorium, 7 p.m.)

The 1981-82 Fortress has arrived. According to the editor, Karen Petersen, students and staff may pick up their copies in the Public Information Office, Luther Hall 101.

"The Difference," Wartburg's new college film, will be premiered on campus Wednesday, Dec. 8, at Community Time, 10 a.m., in Neumann Auditorium.

A December Commencement ceremony is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 12, at 2:30 p.m. in Buhr Lounge. All faculty and students are invited.

Wartburg Sings, the on-campus intramural choir festival, is set for Feb. 5. Anyone who wishes to direct a group should call Kristi Mitchell, 352-4403, or Dave Carlson, ext. 291, by Friday Dec. 10. Rules and general information will be sent to all resident assistants and resident managers.

Duncan Photographers will be on campus to distribute seniors' pictures Monday, Dec. 13, or Tuesday, Dec. 14, if the proofs returned by Nov. 2. Floor pictures should arrive at the same time.

Students who won't return for Spring Term classes should sign the check-out list in the Student Affairs Office. They should also return mail box keys to the Security Office. If the office is not open, keys may be placed in the drop box on the basement door of Old Main.

The Bookstore has begun accepting charges for books, shirts, supplies and Christmas gifts.

Potential December graduates should stop by the Registrar's Office and check the information on the graduation list.

The Christmas Candlelight Service for Sunday, Dec. 12, is set for 7 p.m. in Neumann Auditorium. It will be a traditional candlelight service with St. Paul's Children Choir, Redeemer Bell Choir, Wartburg Chapel Choir and other groups providing special music. Chaplain Larry Trachte will preach.

A Christmas Communion Service is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 11, at 11 p.m. in Centennial Lounge. This will be an informal worship with carols and candlelight.

This is the last Trumpet for Fall Term. The Trumpet will resume publication with its first Spring Term edition set for Jan. 10.

Final exam schedule decision 'arbitrary': Sundet

by MICHELLE SANDEN

Final exams for Fall Term are scheduled for Dec. 13-16. According to Registrar Harold Sundet, the job of deciding how to schedule exams is an "arbitrary" one.

"I simply sit down and look at how tests were given in the past three or four terms," Sundet said.

Sundet said the exams are set up on a type of revolving schedule, with classes being put in different exam slots for each term.

In scheduling the exams, Sundet said he tries to avoid putting 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. classes in the last two exam slots since they often interfere with rides home.

Sundet said he prepares the exam schedules one term in advance so they can be printed in the booklet listing classrooms which is distributed at the beginning of each term.

Sundet prepares the schedule and then has Dr. Edwin Welch, dean of the faculty and vice president for academic affairs, approve it.

Sundet said the exams used to be scheduled from 8 to 10 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. One year he moved the times to 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and those time periods have remained.

Final exams are given in the regularly scheduled classroom unless the instructor makes special arrangements with Sundet before the exam.

Trumpet to increase staff

The Trumpet is accepting applications for several editorial positions that are being added for the Spring Term, according to senior Jon Gremmels, editor.

The editorial staff has been increased for the Spring Term several times in the past to compensate for a reduction in general staff. This occurs because many staff members in the fall are enrolled in the Introduction to Journalism class and are required to write for the newspaper.

New positions include: news editor, assistant news editor, features editor, copy editor and assistant sports editor. All positions include a monetary honorarium.

Students who have completed at least one college journalism course and are interested in newspaper journalism are encouraged to apply at the Trumpet office in Neumann House.

"This is an excellent opportunity for students to learn about newspaper work," Gremmels said.

The Trumpet will publish 14 issues during the Spring and May Terms. The first issue after Christmas break is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 10, 1983.

No housing problems expected, but committee formed anyway

Mason said, "The thing we have control over is keeping students in school. We can't force students to attend Wartburg."

Although enrollment should remain the same, it may also increase. Rose Beardsley Kukla, director of residential life, said, "At this point we don't anticipate any housing problems. The number of students leaving should balance out the number of new students."

Kukla did say a committee has been formed to study housing alternatives for 1983-84 in case there is a large increase in enrollment.

Wartburg was the only four-year American Lutheran Church college in the nation to have an enrollment increase this year.

Alcohol survey attempts to show Wartburg usage

by JIM BUCHHEIM

In an effort to find the amount of alcohol usage of Wartburg students, Jim Davies, Clinton Hall resident director, has distributed an alcohol survey to approximately one-third of the students.

Davies said there were three reasons for the questionnaire. The first was to gather data on drinking patterns of Wartburg students. The second was to determine the number of problem drinkers on campus. The third was to compare opinions present students have about alcohol policies, and past students who were asked the same questions a few years ago.

The students were asked to answer 33 questions on alcohol and the usage of alcohol. The first eight questions, Davies said, were to determine the drinking patterns. Some of the questions were, "How often do you drink alcohol?" "How often do you become intoxicated?" "How has your use of alcohol changed since coming to Wartburg?"

Questions nine through 25 were designed to find the percentage of problem drinkers on campus. They asked such questions as, "Do you feel guilty about your drinking?" "Are you able to stop drinking when you want to?" "Has your drinking ever lost you friends?"

Davies stressed that there was no specific way to distinguish problem drinkers by the answers alone, but it is a start.

"There's no clear cut way of determining an alcoholic," Davies said. "But if we can get an idea of the percentage of problem drinkers, we can get out information to help those problem drinkers."

The last eight questions were policy questions. Davies said former students had answered these same questions, and he wanted to find how opinions had changed. Even if there is a major attitude change, Davies doesn't expect policies to change.

"I'm just comparing the opinions on the policies. I don't expect there to be any changes," Davies said. "I didn't do the survey with changes in mind."

Davies worked with Marv Ott, director of administrative computing and institutional research, to come up with a random sample of names. Davies said computers were used to come up with the list of students.

Economy main reason for decline

"High retention rates and transfers helped our colleges buffer the impact of fewer students," Naomi Linnell, assistant director of the Division for College and University Services, said.

The greatest decline came in the number of minority students, Linnell reported. Comparison figures for all minorities were not available at the time of the meeting, but a 22 percent decline in black students was reported, from 515 in 1981 to 401 in 1982. The total number of minority students enrolled in ALC colleges in 1982 is 792.

Economic difficulties were given as an important reason for the decline. Federal and state cutbacks plus a high rate of unemployment have caused these students to seek other alternatives, Linnell said.

As evidence of its own continuing commitment to education for minority students, the board devoted a full day to a workshop on racism, under the direction of Dr. Mamie McKnight, an education consultant from Dallas, TX.

Note was taken of an opinion regarding the minority scholarship program expressed by the executive committee of the ALC's Coalition of Black Members.

The coalition had suggested that while the policy for minority scholarship was quite acceptable when it was begun a decade ago, perhaps a change is in order now.

When the minority scholarship program was begun, the major emphasis was on getting more qualified minority students to college regardless of whether they were members of the ALC or went to ALC colleges.

The coalition is suggesting that more emphasis now be given to getting more minority students who are members of ALC congregations into ALC colleges.

The board reelected the Rev. Dennis V. Griffin, Sioux Falls, SD, as chairman. Other officers are Dr. Erwin Goldenstein, Lincoln, NE, vice chairman, and Marilyn Hemstad, Olympia, WA, secretary. Dr. Gustav Kopka, East Lansing, MI, was named to the board's executive committee.

'Get Started Right Night!' to promote health, academics

A book, a pencil and a mind set on reviewing are all that's necessary for students to participate in the first "Get Started Right Night!" tonight from 6 to 8 in Buhr Lounge.

The two-hour review session will give students an early start on finals, according to Learning Resource Center Director Becky Kimmerle Berry.

"We want to promote a healthy lifestyle with study patterns and techniques for academic success," she said.

During the two-hour session, there are study group leaders scheduled in eight areas: literature of Old and New Testaments, introduction to Christian thought, clinical and general psychology, principles of accounting, cost accounting, introduction to sociology and chemistry III, said Berry.

She will be present to help those interested in learning better study techniques.

"Students can bring friends and create their own study groups," said Berry. Refreshments will be provided by the Student Health Awareness Committee (SHAC).

"With better study habits," junior SHAC president Chris Kubik said, "students can really enjoy the holiday season by eliminating the stress and overtiredness caused by last minute cramming."

Martin tradition lives on

President Vogel speaks of traditions that make Wartburg special. One tradition established (or perhaps enshrined) by Trumpet columnist Bill Martin is the annual letter to Santa. We could never think of letting that tradition die.

Dear Santa,

It's that time of year again when everybody is yelling "gimmie this." Even though it's hard to get in the Christmas mood when it's 50 degrees outside we thought we would send our request in. We're sure you won't find anything unreasonable. If there is anything you can't fit into a stocking we're sure Knights Gym will hold it.

In the spirit of giving we've decided to make requests for a variety of people. Being the humble individuals we are, we'll save our request for last.

For President Ronald Reagan we are wishing for a pacemaker instead of a peacemaker. It will do him more good. Besides, he has more chance of getting a pacemaker past Congress.

It would be nice, since we're speaking of presidents, if Richard Nixon could get some free space until then, keep smiling on the next space shuttle flight. He wouldn't need much, just enough for a box for cassettes.

To break the monotony, Santa, some local people need some gifts. For instance, President Vogel would like a Bridge better designed than Prairie du Chien's.

Dean Ed Welch would like $25 million dollars. Santa, I know that sounds like a lot, so if you can't arrange the money give Dean Welch the strength to say "no" to 25 faculty tenure requests.

We'll finish the deans' Christmas list with a request for Dr. Kent Hawley. Dean Hawley isn't asking for much this year. He only wants a new Ground South that acts like Vollmer One. See what you can do.

Turning quickly back to the political scene, Walter Mondale would like a personality this Christmas, while secretary of Labor Ray Donovan would like a high tide. It could make his life easier.

We only have small requests concerning the faculty. There is a new member of the Political Science Department. His name is Tom Dumm. Santa, we ask you to bring Tom a road map showing there is more than just Chicago between New York and Los Angeles.

For Coach John Kurtz we're asking for another pair of socks so he can fit into Earnest Oppermann's shoes. If you've got some extra time you could send him a left-handed pitcher that throws smoke, too.

Bob Zinn would like a case of candles and some extra flashlight batteries. Susan Brady could use a clone of Craig Green.

We're wishing a special gift for the Design for Tomorrow program. It would be nice if they could get a nice generous beneficiary heading for that great berufung in the sky. They need one to build a swimming pool. If you can't come up with one of those, why don't you bring some water sealant for the squash court.

We would like something extra special for Coach Don Canfield. Coach Canfield looks so nice with a smile on his face that we thought it would be nice if he could have that "winning" smile at the end of many more football seasons. (Good job team.)

Santa, the women's cross country coach, Ron Alexander, would like a team next year that is injury-free.

We don't have many student requests, Santa. Maybe that's because life here at Wartburg is so wonderful. We do have few though.

Seniors Marty Johnson, Dave Mattson, John Mohan and Brian Picuch would like a change in fashion that would make Wartburg Hall posters popular.

The GB's (Z) would like to have courage, grace and hairy legs.

The men of Wartburg would like to have women.

The women of Wartburg would like you to bring that Des Moines Register columnist Chuck Offenberger back to campus. It could be their only date this year.

Finally, we have a small request. We would like a warm winter. You see, Santa, if the winter isn't warm, considering this column, we will probably have to spend those long, frigid nights alone. If the winter wish is too hard, you could always give us a sense of humor.

Have a Merry Christmas, Santa. Until then, keep smiling.

Sincerely,
Ross and John

Psalm 23—'often taken for granted'

The words of the 23rd Psalm have to be some of the best known Scripture passages of the entire Bible. Those who have grown up in the church could probably recite the first verses word for word and give a pretty good summary of what the rest of the chapter is about. Even those who have were forming become anymore than cross-stitch letters. They just never sunk in.

a religious perspective

by DENISE

not grown up in the church have most likely run into it at sometime in their lives.

Even with all this exposure, the words of the 23rd Psalm are often taken much for granted. I cannot make accusations, but I know that I stand guilty.

To give an example: there is a walnut-framed cross-stitch picture of the first four verses of this chapter hanging on the wall in my room. It is a large picture and I devoted most of my spare time for a month one summer to the completion of it.

But for all the time I spent pulling thread in and out of that material, I never once let the words that My problem was that I was so intrigued by the arrangement of the words I forgot to look at the beauty of what they said. Take the first verse.

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." I can't believe how many times I have recited, listened to or read those words without even thinking about their meaning. Perhaps there is no universal truth being stated here, but there is truth on an individual level.

Without getting into these words, their beauty is still evident. But it is only when one allows the words to become meaningful that the beauty can become a part of life rather than a way of living.

Returning to the words of the first verse, the first question I have centers on the second phrase—I shall not want. Want what?

The phrase could refer to our lack of desire for Christ as our shepherd. Since we are sinners, we often disregard the direction Christ points us. We wander off on our own, sometimes even finding a path we think is much easier to travel. But it is also much easier to get lost.

The words of the second verse point us in a different direction. They suggest the goodness and peacefulness of the path Christ chooses. So perhaps we will not want because Christ will provide us with all that we need.

Columnist radiates with Christmas spirit

Well, it's that time of year again. Amidst the garland, carols and flashing lights are the wild-eyed desperate students trying to get everything done and still have a social life. It's almost impossible.

Christmas and finals at the same time is almost too much to bear.

Don't get me wrong. I get as many jollies out of Christmas as the next guy. Maybe more.

If you want to see the most gaudy Christmas decorations jammed into the least space, walk by Vollmer 142. My roommate and I got slightly carried away. It's addicting, I tell you. Once you start decorating, it's hard to stop. We got masking-tape-itis.

We have three strings of obnoxiously blinking lights, an electric candle, a string of Santa lights and a six-foot poster of Santa himself. Not autographed, though.

We even have a Santa—holding a candle—that plays eight carols over and over again. The candle blinks on and off in time to the music and the highest note would hurt a deaf dog's ear. My roommate just hates it and glowers every time I turn it on.

It wasn't enough, though. We still felt that there was something missing. We decided that we had to have a tree, but neither one of us wanted to shell out the bucks to get one. We got the bright idea to convert our plant pole into one. So we did—complete with fake branches, ornaments and a star. Ugliest thing you ever did see. Mom always told me it was the thought that counted, but she never saw this pitiful tree.

Positively one of the best parts of Christmas is the mistletoe—no doubt about it. We put ours in a great spot and have sneaky plans to make sure it gets used.

One guy was given a bad time because he put his mistletoe up in the middle of the room.

"You've got to put your mistletoe over the couch," his friends said. "It's no good where it is now."

"Hey, it doesn't matter where you put it," he said. "Mistletoe is good anywhere in the room it's in."

I'm with him.

I think the Christmas stuff does come out a little early.

One store offered a sale to buy Halloween and Christmas cards at the same time.

If I can leave just one bit of advice to future generations, it'll be this: Never, ever, shop the day after Thanksgiving. It's mass suicide.

People armed with fat wallets storm the stores and buy every conceivable useless gadget. Who would want an ice crusher in the shape of W.C. Fields' head? Put the ice in his mouth and he chews it up. I saw someone buy one and it went for $30. My taste—which has been known to run a little seedy at times—isn't even that bad.

I saw five Santas in one mall. They ranged in age from pre-adolescent to post-retirement. One looked almost anorexic.

A Santa came in a helicopter because the forecaster said the "atmospheric conditions" weren't right for the reindeer. Poor reindeer. The Santa in my hometown isn't so rich. He rode in a truck.

Lines are long. Tempers are short. I'd like to see it the other way around.

One of my friends refused to think about Christmas until Dec. 1. He came over the night of Nov. 30 to fix a string of my lights that refused to work.

I made the mistake of having some Christmas music on. Wrong move on my part. This guy is big.

"Do I hear Christmas music?" he snarled. "It's not Dec. 1. Turn it off."

"It's our room and we can play it if we want to," I

aye! there's the rub

shot back while flinching—fully expecting to be struck down.

The guy ended up fixing our lights by cutting out a third of the string. I can't help but wonder if he did it to get me. You can bet I'll never make him mad again.

Merry Christmas. Happy New Year. And may you pass all your finals. Amen.

Ohio prisoner seeks 'friendship'

I am a convict in Ohio's prison system. I am a black male who got caught up in the fast, sometimes exciting and sometimes violent "life of the streets." Over the years, things had gotten to the point where I was only interested in doing what I wanted to do, when I wanted to do it, and at whomever's expense it happened to occur. My thoughts centered around the pleasures of the present—not being that concerned with whether or not I infringed upon the rights of others nor did I consider the long term consequences of my actions.

Locking a man up in an overcrowded, brutal and de-humanizing environment with little or no treatment/rehabilitation and then expect him to come out with a healthy outlook towards society, just isn't realistic.

Ohio's prisons are not geared toward reforming the prisoner—rather they act as a warehouse to confine him for as long as possible and upon "release," they "hope" that he has learned his lesson!

One of the problems that the offender faces is that the public wants us off the streets and the courts usually reflect the basic attitudes of the public by giving us a long sentence. However, neither the public nor the courts are concerning themselves with whether we get "help"—just get us away from decent people. Now I'm not saying that we should not be locked up but I do feel that we deserve a chance to make the necessary "changes."

You can not keep an offender from going back to the "con game" and "pimp game," the "drug scene" or the "burglary game" unless he first realizes that he needs to make a change, then he must want to change, and then he must do something to make the change. A lot of offenders can't see any reason for changing—that's why they keep coming back to prison.

Over the years, my family and friends seem to have taken the stand: "out of sight, out of mind." I've tried to keep up correspondence with them but they have gotten so caught up in their own little world that they just can't find the time to write or visit.

If possible, I would like for you to print this letter in your paper and if there is anyone that would like to correspond with me (offering advice, friendship, or just a few words of encouragement), I would appreciate it very much!

Campus nurse thanks blood donors

The Wartburg/Waverly Community, Nov. 8, sponsored its second successful on-campus Blood Donor Day. Such an event requires the cooperation of many people.

I want to recognize and thank the donors and volunteers for a well-organized project. Through the volunteerism of 45 students and 15 community health professionals, 195 students and 11 staff/faculty members gave 191 units of blood in six hours.

The Student Health Awareness Committee, headed by junior Jan Meier, donor day chairperson, and the community profession/staff coordinated by Pat Mick, deserve special thanks and respect for their professional approach in planning a day when Wartburg had an opportunity to give a special gift.

It's a pleasure to coordinate such an event. My special thanks.

Club president chastises Fortress

As president of The Missing Bytes, I am writing in regard to the '81-'82 Fortress distributed this past week. Last year a picture of The Missing Bytes was taken for the Fortress. Afterwards we received no communication from the staff and we assumed our picture would be in the Fortress. To our disappointment, we were not even mentioned. We expect an apology for the omission of The Missing Bytes and other campus organizations. Hopefully next year's Fortress will include all campus organizations and be worth its price.

'Arsenic' director criticizes reviewer

As the director of "Arsenic and Old Lace," I want it known that I did not appreciate the headline in your review of the show. To quote Mortimer in "Arsenic and Old Lace," it was "a very inaccurate piece of reporting." We had 100 people in attendance opening night and your headline was extremely misleading. You made it sound as though we had "a small audience" for the entire run! This is totally untrue. We had a full house or nearly so for every performance. We played to over 500 people including our crew workers. Did you know we turned people away at the door because we reached capacity? Did you bother to find out why the balcony was not used for seating? For your information, fire code forbids it!

It seems that Wartburg reviewers feel the necessity to nit-pick the difficulties in a production. A good reviewer admits there are technical problems but does not stoop to explicit descriptions as you did with the door problem. Your job is to make valid constructive criticisms and comments rather than putting down a show with cheap shots! This is only a reflection on your inept manner of reviewing.

Your final statement, once more, was another snide remark and I am not sure as to whom it was intended. I do know it was a comment that the paper never should have printed. Just what do you think are collegiate standards? Did you do any homework ahead of time to find out that practically the entire cast had never been in a show before? They did a great job considering the problems we incurred getting this show together. I suggest that before any show is reviewed by your staff that they do some homework first—they just might end up with an accurate, if not adequate, piece of reporting.

Since the Trumpet did not give our show any coverage the week of the show—and I had called ahead of time and was assured that the show would get covered—I feel it would be only fair to the 50 plus people in this production to publicly set the record straight. You owe that much to a portion of the student body who worked so hard for something you never felt was worthy of including in your paper.

I do hope that for the spring production you will give it the coverage during its 6-8 week rehearsal time that you so diligently avoided for ours.

It is a real slap in the face when cast members bring articles in for our publicity and you wouldn't bother to include one paragraph to help launch a show. I feel you owe this show an apology for your total lack of support and the manner in which the review was handled.

Assistant dean enjoys glasswork

If you enjoy crafts and haven't completed Christmas preparations, Rose Beardsley Kukla will convince you to try glass etching.

For the third year Kukla, assistant dean of students and director of residential life at Wartburg, is creating elegant glass etchings of the nativity scene. The first two years, her etchings were gifts to family. This year, although she is filling orders for friends and colleagues, she intends to reserve an etching for herself and her husband, Mike.

Kukla thought etching sounded easy when she read about it in a Christmas magazine.

"At a lumber yard, I ask for glass cut to size," she said. "I use 11 by 19 inches. It is important that the edges not be nicked, because the finished glass will not be framed.

"Then I cut a rectangle of contact paper to fit the glass and adhere it to the surface. I use clear contact paper so I can put my pattern under the glass and see through to cut out the shapes I want etched."

Kukla says the most time consuming part of the process is cutting out the pattern with a razor-sharp knife. Usually that takes three hours, and often it is her "in front of the television" project.

Etching is a chemical process, using a compound purchased in craft stores. She applies the chemical with a small sponge, being careful to distribute it evenly across the cut-out areas of the contact paper.

"I found that unless I laid the glass flat, etching compound got on the back of the glass," Kukla cautioned. "My technique is to apply the compound while the glass is on a terry cloth towel."

After 10 minutes, the etching compound is washed off and the glass cleaned and dried.

"I stand the etching in a 2 by 3 inch rectangle of wood that is the length of the glass," Kukla said. "The lumber yard cuts the wood and even puts an eight-inch groove for holding the glass down its length."

Kukla enjoys making Christmas gifts, and her handwork includes hooked rugs, counted cross-stitch framings and ornaments, stuffed animal toys, quilting, quilling, macrame and sewed items. This year she and Mike are adding black walnut meats and their own apple-grape jelly to their Christmas offerings.

"My grandmother gave me a love for doing things with my hands," Kukla explained. "She lived next door to us in Monroe, CT, and she taught me how to knit, crochet, embroider and quilt."

Air Supply perfect for 'making out'

Air Supply: Now And Forever (Arista)

Soft lights, a bottle of Pink Chablis and Air Supply. Make-out time, right? Johnny Mathis had his share of the backseat necking and other assorted sexual delights with a run of romantic ballads in the early 60s. Things haven't changed very much in two decades. Well, maybe lovebirds don't neck anymore.

With two back-to-back platinum albums and a string of dreamy, virginal love ballads, Air Supply has overtaken Mathis' role in the 80s.

Graham Russell and Russell Hitchcock—the nucleus of Air Supply—complement each other like Southern Comfort and Coke: a smooth, graceful high. Hitchcock flaunts his 3½-octave voice accompanied by a restrained backing and a glistening string section.

The melodies are pure and simple. Hitchcock and Russell sing them with a passionate sweet poise. "Even The Nights Are Better" and "Young Love," both hit singles, showcase the point.

Air Supply and a couch for two can go a long way. Try it this weekend . . . and if that doesn't work, there's always Johnny Mathis.

King Crimson: Beat (Warner Brothers/E.G.)

To the untrained ear, King Crimson's excursion into the depths of overcast electronic inventions will sound avant-garde. There's more royal flesh to it though.

Robert Fripp, a brilliant progressive guitar stylist, is a purveyor of instrumental intelligence and has mastered the art of coupling complex conceptual works into a cohesive whole.

"Beat" extends beyond the sinewy synthesized ensemble, "Discipline." Fripp's spectral synthesis and lead singer Adrian Belew's (former Talking Heads) curious vocal counterparts mesh into a semblance of surrealism.

The premise of Crimson's music—impulsive, impromptu disjointed parts—lends itself to linear structures collected in the pursuit of extravagant art-rock enterprise.

"Beat" delves into an intercourse of assiduous tempos, courtesy of occasional Genesis beat man, Bill Bruford. Tony Levin's effective bass runs also add to the elitist rock endeavor. Outstanding cuts include "Heartbeat," "Two Hands," "The Howler" and "Neurotica." It's a mind-blowing, almost psychedelic experience. The question is, will you bop to it?

Nicolette Larson: All Dressed Up And No Place To Go (Warner Bros.)

Nicolette Larson bastardizes L.A. rock with popular appeal polish, sweet, soft, and airy inflections, and a vocal delivery that ought to be muzzled.

Despite the dubious commercial success of her debut album, the singer hasn't learned to stand on her own. The sweetened pop schlock continues on this set which features a number of fine songs written by the likes of Jackson Browne, Leon Russell and the late Lowell George.

Ironically, the single, "I Only Want To Be With You," a stale revival of the old Dusty Springfield chart-topper, is the blandest cut on the LP.

Larson's husband, Andrew Gold, and session cohorts provide all the embellishments of impressive musical backing, but with an undernourished voice, Larson is likely to remain a classless artist.

Melissa Manchester: Hey Ricky (Arista)

Manchester's crisp, charming vocals were on the fringe of a national pop breakout before they got muddled in thick, full-blown production-oriented albums. She also had to struggle with a repertoire of sluggish, cheerless MOR (middle-of-the-road) songs that hid the mystery and innocence of the singer's vocal impact.

The former Bette Midler backup singer, however, seems to be at a turning point with this LP. Arif Mardin's production is strongly accented on rhythm and vocal parts. Manchester adjusts suitably well, shifting from a mixed bag of styles ranging from pop commercialism—"You Should Hear How She Talks About You" and "Hey Ricky"—to sullen, mellow ballads—"Slowly" and "Come In From The Rain."

She shows good taste in Broadway grandeur with an acceptable version of the Gershwins' "Someone To Watch Over Me." Although there are traces of a forgettable past as on the gutless "Race To The End" (from "Chariots Of Fire") and the mushy "Wish We Were Heroes" (a duet with David Gates)—Manchester makes a concerted attempt in shaping an uncluttered, honest approach to mass appeal pop styles.

Tough non-conference contests ahead for 7-1 Wartburg cagers

by JIM BUCHHEIM

The men's basketball team will put their 7-1 record on the line tomorrow night in a non-conference game against Coe, 7:30 in Knights Gym.

Coe, which will feature a young yet experienced team, will be a stiff test for the Knights, Coach Lewis "Buzz" Levick said.

"Coe has played some good teams this year," Levick said. "They lost by only four to Simpson, the team which we consider the best in our league."

Levick said Coe will be physical, and although the game is non-conference, it's an important one.

"This game always means quite a bit to us," Levick said. "There has always been a comparison between the Midwest Conference [which Coe is in], and our conference."

The final game before Christmas break will be Thursday night's contest against Mount Mercy, in Knights Gym.

"Mount Mercy got off to a great start this year," Levick said. "They have excellent quickness, and they play a solid man-to-man defense. It's a quality team."

"This game will be a real test for us."

Wartburg is coming off a victorious weekend, defeating Northwestern (MN), 65-61, Friday, and Iowa Wesleyan, 84-61, Saturday.

A tough Northwestern zone kept the Knights out of their offense most of the second half, but their balanced scoring proved to be too much for Northwestern.

"It was not one of our better efforts," Levick said about the game. "I think they felt they could win easily, and after playing so many games, that's understandable."

"It was the first time we faced a zone this year," Levick said. "It was good for our players to go against a zone. It will certainly help us in the future."

Senior Mark Merritt led the Knights, scoring 18 points. Three other players, seniors Greg Schmitz (11), Steve Schulz (10) and junior Dan DeVries (10) were also in double figures.

Unlike Friday's game, Levick was extremely pleased with Saturday's contest.

"It was a very good first half," Levick said. "They [Iowa Wesleyan] were not playing well, and we were playing exceptionally well."

"It was a game which we could play a lot of players, and see how they react in an actual game situation. It was an ideal game for us."

Balanced scoring was again a key, with Merritt, Schmitz and DeVries all scoring 14 points, and junior Rich Barnett scoring 11.

With only one loss, Levick has been pleased with the progress of his team, especially the defense.

"We're playing a pretty solid man-to-man defense, that's what I'm most pleased about," Levick said. "Hopefully, we'll smooth out the offense a bit."

Levick has also been surprised about the three-point rule, and the impact it has had on the game.

"I've been a little surprised at the high percentage of three-pointers, and not just our team," Levick said. "I have to admit it has more effect on the game than I anticipated."

Senior forward Mark Merritt battles Iowa Wesleyan forward Dennis Barker for an offensive rebound while junior Center Dan DeVries waits for a possible loose ball.

First-ever women's conference game at Luther Wartburg's women's basketball team faces Luther in Decorah Saturday for its first-ever Iowa Conference encounter. The Knights inaugurate the conference campaign after hosting Upper Iowa in Knights Gym Wednesday.

This is the first year women's teams from colleges affiliated with the Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference are playing against each other in league competition. The conference title will be determined by won-lost record during a single round-robin schedule. Next year, each team will play every other team twice to determine the championship.

The Upper Iowa game is not considered a conference contest, though, because when conference teams meet more than once this year, only the last game is included in the standings. Wartburg and Upper Iowa will play again Jan. 21 in Fayette.

Wartburg takes a 3-3 record into this Wednesday's game with the Peacocks. The Knights captured second place in the University of Wisconsin-Platteville Tournament last weekend.

The Knights beat the host school, 62-61, Friday night but lost the championship game to Winona State, 53-44, Saturday. Junior Lynn Dose was Wartburg's leading scorer in both games. She tallied 21 points against Platteville and added 25 against Winona.

Coach Kathy Meyer was pleased with her team's performance.

"I thought we played well, considering we played schools with enrollments of 5,000 or more," Meyer said. "In the first game we did really well."

According to Meyer, the Knights trailed Winona, 7-6, early in Saturday's game. However, Winona then scored 15 unanswered points to take a commanding 22-6 lead. The Knights managed to outscore Winona, 38-31, the rest of the way.

Sophomore LeAnn Bollum added seven points in the Knights' loss to Winona. Senior Diane Smith and junior Debbie Sheets chipped in with 12 points apiece in the win over Platteville. Bernadette Roskop led a balanced Winona attack with 13 points, while Robin Thurner and Sarah Seidler paced the Platteville attack with 19 and 14 points respectively.

The Knights opened the season with five games during Thanksgiving break. Wartburg opened with home games against Westmar, Iowa Wesleyan and Grand View and participated in a tournament in Cedar Rapids hosted by Mount Mercy.

Dose poured in 28 points to lead the Knights past Westmar, 62-56, in the season opener Nov. 19. The next day, Bollum scored 18 points and Dose added 17 as Wartburg topped Iowa Wesleyan, 77-67.

Grand View used a balanced scoring attack to hand the Knights their first setback of the season, 83-54, Nov. 23. Sheryl Tunning and Diane Miller scored 16 points apiece and Theresa Bruce and Dawnelle Tindrell added 14 points each for the Vikings. Dose led all scorers with 30 points for the Knights.

Wartburg suffered a one-point loss at the hands of Culver-Stockton (MO) Nov. 26 at the Mount Mercy Tournament in Cedar Rapids. The Knights battled back from an 11-point halftime deficit but came up short, 58-57. Dose was the game's top scorer with 24 points. Junior Sue Lynch added 13 points and Sheets tossed in 10 for the Knights.

Meyer hopes her squad can close out the first part of the season with victories this week before the Knights take nearly one month off for Christmas break.

She said she doesn't expect Upper Iowa will be as tough as it was last year. That game begins at 7:30 p.m. in Knights Gym.

Luther should have a good team, Meyer said, and they're always good on their own court. Gametime is slated for 8 p.m., with the junior varsity game—the first of the year for the Knights—starting at 6 p.m.

Wrestlers host 'tough' Knights' Invitational

Wartburg's wrestlers head into the final leg of their pre-Christmas schedule when they host the Knights' Invitational Saturday in Knights Gymnasium. The meet begins at 9 a.m.

Nine teams will compete in the tournament, including the defending champion Buena Vista. Buena Vista is also the defending IIAC champion. Augustana (IL) is also a favorite in the meet, according to Coach Dick Walker.

Buena Vista is currently rated seventh in Amateur Wrestling News NCAA Division III poll, and Augustana is rated fourth after finishing fifth last year in the national tournament. Cornell, Central, St. Olaf, William Penn, Upper Iowa and Simpson round out the field.

"If we finish in the upper-half of the field, we would be wrestling well," Walker said. "It's a tough tournament this year."

The Knights opened their season at the Cornell Thanksgiving Open where they captured three of the twelve titles, and had three other place-winners. No team standings were kept.

In their first dual meet of the year, the Knights dropped a road meet to the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, 29-13.

"We didn't wrestle very well, but we were beaten by a good team," Walker said. Platteville is rated 14th in Division III.

Wartburg won only three matches in the meet. Becker pinned his opponent at heavyweight, Hogan won a superior decision, 9-1, at 142 pounds, and sophomore Bing Miller decisioned his opponent, 6-5, at 118 pounds.

Last Saturday, the wrestlers competed in the UNI Open in Cedar Falls. No team scores were kept, and the field of teams featured a mixture of Division I, II, and III teams. In spite of the high level of competition, the Knights wrestled "the best we have ever done at UNI," Walker said.

For the second consecutive year, Wartburg had two place-winners in the heavyweight division. Becker placed the highest any Wartburg wrestler has placed in the tournament, finishing second. Junior Jay Bean placed fourth. Both finished fifth last year.

In addition to the two heavyweights, Walker also cited Hogan and Junior Roger Pagel, at 190 pounds, as wrestling well. Both wrestlers were just one match away from place in the meet.

Winter sports should keep Knights Gym cooking

In the words of Des Moines Register sports columnist Maury White: A little bit about a lot of things.

Wartburg's winter sports are off and flying in fine fashion, taking over where the football and cross country Knights left off.

The women's basketball team is off to a 3-3 start after last weekend's Platteville Tournament. Don't let their record deceive you, the women are playing some excellent basketball, losing a one-point game here or there. Otherwise, the record could be even better.

Their male counterparts are off and running at 7-1 after this weekend's action, led by senior forward Mark "Three-Point" Merritt, who is averaging just under 30 points a game.

Merritt, one of the Knights' lone-range bombers, has connected on 16 such three-pointers, with four coming in the 85-75 Thanksgiving break victory over Grand View.

On the mat, the Knight grapplers are fielding one of their youngest, yet experienced teams ever. But they appear to have depth at the lower weight classes, eliminating the problems of past wrestling squads.

Having followed the winter sports in this young season, I can assure you that our Wartburg winter sports teams are power-packed with excitement and offer excellent entertainment to all campus and community spectators. The problem now is getting Knights Gymnasium packed with supporters to view the brand of winter sports that only the Knights can provide.

Although the winter sports have begun their respective seasons, pro football has again graced our Sunday afternoons, ending the 56-day strike. The players are returning to the gridiron where they belong.

when in doubt... punt

by DAN RUND

In this abbreviated season, the top eight teams (based on won-lost records) from each league will make the playoffs to vie for a shot at Super Bowl XVII in Pasadena, CA, Jan. 30, 1983.

With four weeks still remaining before the playoffs, the New Orleans Saints appear to be headed for the playoffs for the first time in their history.

Not too bad for the "Ain'ts" of two years ago when they finished the season with one win and sent fans reeling for paper bags to put over their faces so no one would notice who they really were.

Although the Saints have been doing the winning, you can thank the Houston Oilers in more ways than one.

The Oilers, who had threatened to go to the Super Bowl a couple of times, found it necessary to fire O.A. "Bum" Phillips and replace him with Eddy Biles. In the process New Orleans picked up the fired Phillips and has turned its program around, while the Oilers went the opposite direction.

And now, "Bum's" old quarterback at Houston, Kenny Stabler—alias "The Snake"—has rejoined Phillips at New Orleans, and the two are surely destined for history.

It will be interesting to see at playoff time whether "Bum" and "The Snake" are Saints or Ain'ts.

And what about the Oilers? Well, let's just say they are well below .500, in the lower eight teams in the American Conference and are virtually out of any playoff picture.

To couple that, they were beaten, last week, by the perennial powerhouse from the Northeast, the New England Patriots. Ha!

With a name like "Bum" he can't be all bad. At least the Saints don't think so.

Bishop loss ends 'fine' season

by KEVIN BASKINS

Even a first-round loss to Bishop College (TX), 32-7, in the the NCAA Division III playoffs could not put a damper on another fine season for Wartburg's football team.

Wartburg, which used a strong passing attack all year, ended up losing to Bishop's strong aerial game. David Parker, Bishop's sophomore quarterback, completed 15 of 23 passes for 363 yards and all four of the Tigers' touchdowns.

Junior Michael Gray caught five passes for 202 yards and three touchdowns for the Tigers, including a 66-yard scoring strike in the fourth quarter.

Senior Mike Ward, this year's IIAC Most Valuable Player, scored Wartburg's only touchdown in the game with a 30-yard run in the third quarter. Ward finished the game with 112 yards rushing on 24 carries.

Senior John Crosser, who served as a team captain this year, called the Knights' season the "best of my football career."

"I was honored to be part of this team," said Crosser. "This was a team with a lot of character."

Crosser believes the Central game was the Knights' best team effort of the season, but the Dubuque game will also be a game he will remember for a long time.

"I'll always remember the crowd yelling 'defense, defense, defense' in overtime," Crosser said.

"I have no regrets on this season at all. We worked hard and played well as a team. It was a nice way to go out as a senior," said Crosser.

"It was a fun season for us," said senior captain Brad Smoldt. "It was a real team effort."

"I think the Central game was the big game of the year for us," Smoldt said.

Ward, Wartburg's other senior captain, affirmed Smoldt's assessment.

"We lived the Central game for a year," said Ward. "Winning it the way we did showed the quality of our team and how well we were prepared."

"I was just glad I was able to stay healthy this year and be able to play football with the rest of the guys on the team. It was hard to watch last year when I was hurt. I wanted to be a part of the team."

"Our goal was to win the conference title this year and we accomplished it. We made some costly errors in the Bishop game but the outcome could easily be different tomorrow. We were just happy to be in the playoffs at all," said Ward.

"The support of the fans, the pep rallies and the winning attitude we carried over from last year really helped us out this year," Ward said.

"If anybody thought that last year was a fluke, we put those ideas to rest," Ward said.

Junior Reg Leonard who, along with juniors Doug Lincoln and Jeff Glaw, will serve as a captain for next year's team said that there will be a little pressure to repeat this year's success.

"We've developed a winning attitude over the last two years and have a lot of good people coming back, and that will help us a lot next year," said Leonard.

Leonard sees the Knight's biggest task to be replacing Ward.

"Replacing Mike would be unheard of," says Leonard. "Mike's a tremendous athlete."

"I think that the important thing is that we play and have fun. Winning isn't the only thing. We want to win as a team," Leonard said.

Lincoln doesn't look for this year's success to be a burden for next year's squad.

"I look forward to it as being an opportunity to continue a winning attitude we've created here the last two years. I think it makes it easier for you to want to motivate yourself to improve. We're the defending conference champs and we'll want to improve ourselves individually in the offseason," Lincoln explains.

"Our football program has respect now; something we haven't had here in a while. There probably will be a little pressure for us to do well, but that will make us a better team," Lincoln said.

Coach Don Canfield said there were several factors involved for Wartburg's success the past two seasons, none being more important than the others.

"I had more recruiting time last year

so we've been getting a lot of quality athletes for the program.

"We've been very healthy the last couple of years and we have several gifted athletes in our program."

"The continuity of our coaching staff has also helped out. It helps the program to have the same people around every year," Canfield added.

"We have a lot of good people coming back at every position and we'll be strong again next year," Canfield predicts.

"We'll particularly be looking to replace the big people we lose through graduation and for another quality quarterback," Canfield said.

Wartburg's perfect 7-0 conference mark gave them their fourth IIAC Conference mark ever with other titles coming in the 1958, 1959 and 1968 seasons.

Wartburg led the league in three individual offensive categories. Sophomore quarterback, Gary Walljasper led the conference in passing with 1,578 yards and in total offense with 1,426 yards. Senior tailback Mike Ward led in scoring with 90 points.

Ward also led the team for the season in rushing with 967 yards, receiving with 30 receptions and scoring with 20 touchdowns for 120 points. Walljasper finished with 2,399 yards passing for the season and 2,171 yards total offense. Senior Dennis Washington returned 17 kick-offs for 315 yards to lead that category.

Defensively, sophomores Brad Bowman and Terry Kozich led in interceptions with six each. Bowman also led the punt returners with 22 for 219 yards. Senior Dan Rund led the punters with 57 for a 36.7 yard average.

Wartburg out-scored their opponents 303-194 for the season.

Wartburg equalled the most wins in a season mark with eight set by the 1958 and 1959 teams.

The Knights broke the old interception record of 25 set in 1976 with 27 for the year.

Offensively the team set records for most points in a season, most touchdowns for a season with 39; most field goals in a season with 12; team passing for season with 2,597; team passing game, 367 against Cornell; total offense season with 3,866; and total offense game with 611 yards against Cornell.

Walljasper broke eight of Wartburg's individual records including five which he set last year. They include most passes completed career with 290; most passes completed season with 158 of 287; passing career with 3,966; passing game with 350 against Cornell; passing season with 2,399; total offense game with 336 against Cornell; total offense season with 2,171; total
